

Bio

What can one say about a life path through three continents, in poverty and wealth, from hippie to waitress to corporate executive, from hobby crafter to artist, gallerist and curator?

Sylvia Eichmann, A self-made autodidact, collecting skills and experience in diverse environments along her path, her focus and creative expression are steadily aimed at subjects such as states of consciousness, perception, philosophy and psychology.

Her works are a study in personal process as well as life's meanings and quirks in various, often mixed techniques such as printmaking, collage, drawing & painting, bookbinding, ceramics, and whatever else is handy. Both meaningful and humorous, large and small, complex and simple, her collections reflect her life accurately.
